Sniper kills three at political rally

RALEIGH, N.C. (UPI)—A 21-year-old janitor, shooting "at everything that moved," killed three persons and wounded eight others Monday outside a shopping mall where Sen. B. Everett Jordan was campaigning, then killed himself when he heard police sirens.

Police said they were convinced it was not an assassination attempt on the North Carolina Democrat, who was unharmed and had just stepped through the glass doors of the North Hills shopping center mall when bullets shattered them.

But authorities could give no reason why the sniper, a black man identified as Harvey Glenn McLeod, crouched between cars in the parking lot and reeled off 14 shots in a span of two minutes from a 22 caliber rifle he had purchased across town a few hours earlier. He had to reload once.

Two of the wounded were little girls and another was one of Jordan's aides, Wes Hayden.

All of the victims were white.

The dead were identified as Mrs. Jacquelyn Wharton, 47, who had been chatting with Jordan before he went into the mall; James G. Henry, 32, of Cary, N.C., father of one of the wounded children, and Melvin D. Harrison Jr., 23, of New Bern, N.C.

Several of the wounded, including another woman in the group that greeted Jordan outside the mall, were in critical condition.

Witnesses said the gunfire lasted about two minutes, felling virtually every person outside the front of the mall. The sniper was "real calm and took real good aim when he shot one fellow," said a witness. "He was calm as anything I've ever seen."

"He was shooting at cars, anything that moved," said another.

Jordan said "I just don't know" if McLeod was gunning for him. "I have never thought that anybody would shoot me and I can't see why anybody would."

Nonetheless, Jordan cancelled all scheduled campaign appearances before Saturday's runoff election and was assigned bodyguards by the state bureau of investigation. He had rejected an offer of state guards after the shooting of Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace.

Jordan, a 15-year veteran of the Senate and chairman of the Senate Rules and Administration Committee, faces a runoff election for re-election Saturday against Congressman Nick Califanakis.

The shooting came two weeks to the day after Wallace was critically wounded while campaigning in Laurel, Md. Arthur Herman Bremer, 21, Milwaukee, was charged with that shooting.

Police Chief Robert E. Goodwin said that "Senator Jordan's schedule was not announced. As far as we can tell, the man did not arrive when the senator did, and as far as we're concerned it was just a coincidence."

Missile buildup cut

WASHINGTON — Work on the safeguard missile system has been sharply curtailed, Defense Secretary Laird said. He ordered suspension of construction on a missile site at Malmstrom Air Force Base, Mont., and suspension of research and development work that is barred by the arms-limitation treaty signed by Nixon in Moscow. But Laird warned he didn't see any immediate savings in the offensive strategic weapons area as a result of the arms accord. Nixon believes the treaty ensures American security despite the fact it gives the Soviets a numerical edge. Kissinger said the Senate is expected to ratify the pact.

Ulster cease-fire called

ULSTER — A cease-fire in Ulster was proclaimed by the IRA's official wing. The announcement came after British troops were deployed throughout the Northern Ireland capital to forestall feared clashes between Protestant and Roman Catholic militants. There wasn't any word as to whether the nationalist provisional wing also would suspend hostilities. The provisionals denied a Dublin newspaper story which said they would announce a seven-day truce starting June 1. The official wing's statement said its cease-fire decision resulted from the "growing danger of sectarian conflict in Northern Ireland." (Details on page 2.)

Iran to ask continued aid

TEHRAN — Assurances of continued U.S. aid will be sought by the Shah of Iran when President Nixon visits Tehran tomorrow, diplomatic sources said. Nixon plans a 24-hour stopover on the way home. The Iranian government, concerned about urban guerrillas, has ordered extra-tight security during the visit.

Tanker derails causing hazard

CHARLESTON — A derailed tank car loaded with liquid nitric acid ruptured Monday, seeping deadly, bright orange fumes lofting over farm lands. Thousands of residents of nearby communities were evacuated. The tanker, carrying a load of more than 15,000 gallons, broke open after 22 cars of an 80-car Penn Central freight jumped the tracks about seven miles east of here, near the community of Ashmore. Historic summit ends with pledge for peace

KIEV (UPI)—President Nixon and Soviet leaders ended their week-long summit Monday pledging to "do their utmost to avoid military confrontations and to prevent the outbreak of nuclear war," but they acknowledged deep and unresolved differences over Vietnam.

Nixon signed a final communique and a 12-point declaration of Soviet-American "basic principles" with Leonid I. Brezhnev, general secretary of the Soviet Communist party, before television cameras in the Kremlin's Vladimir Hall.

They also announced that the ruling Soviet triumvirate—Brezhnev, Alexei N. Kosygin and Nikolai V. Podgorny—had accepted Nixon's invitation to visit the United States at a "mutually convenient time," subject to negotiation. The White House said it probably wouldn't take place until after the November elections.

After a farewell caviar-and-champagne reception in the Kremlin, President and Mrs. Nixon flew to this ancient mother city of Russia, the capital of the Ukraine, for an overnight stay before heading today for Iran, the first stop on their return home.

Nixon and the Soviet leadership agreed to renounce use of force and to continue cooperation where their interests coincide in a spirit of "peaceful coexistence," but White House adviser Henry A. Kissinger disclosed that "long, sometimes difficult and very detailed" discussions had failed to produce any movement on Vietnam by either side.

"Only time will tell," said Kissinger, whether the summit talks will result in bringing the war to a faster conclusion satisfactory to both sides.

Soviet and American spokesmen stressed the communique's assertion that no secret deals were made.

Kissinger, in a one-hour press briefing, expressed White House satisfaction with the way the summit had gone on most other key issues. "I think we essentially met the goals we set for ourselves, give or take, 10 per cent," he said.

As Nixon flew to Kiev, Secretary of State William P. Rogers and Martin J. Hillenbrand, assistant secretary of state for European affairs, flew to Bonn, West Germany, for a NATO foreign ministers meeting starting today. On his arrival Rogers said the summit talks had "laid the foundations for a better and more peaceful world."

The Nixons, accompanied by Soviet ambassador Anatoly F. Dobrynin and U.S. ambassador

Jacob Beam, were guests of Ukrainian government officials Monday night at the pastel-blue Marinsky Palace in Kiev. Other guests reported it was "very relaxed, very hospitable."

Nixon ends his eight-day visit to the Soviet Union—the first by any U.S. President in peacetime—at noon today, when he flies to Tehran for a visit of nearly 24 hours as guest of the Shah of Iran. He is to return to Washington on Thursday after a second stopover in Warsaw, Poland.

Diplomatic sources in Tehran said the Shah, in meetings with the President that are expected to total about four hours, would seek assurances that the Nixon Doctrine of limited U.S. commitments overseas will not disrupt the substantial flow of American military assistance to his oil-rich country.

These sources said the Shah has been concerned about the possible emergence of an isolationist U.S. foreign policy at a time of turmoil and unrest in neighboring Middle East countries, notably Iraq.

The President's departure from Moscow was delayed 45 minutes because of a jet engine failure on "Soviet One," the four-engine Ilyushin 62 flagship and pride of the Soviet airline Aeroflot. The breakdown forced the Nixons to transfer to an identical backup plane for the 70-minute flight southwest of Moscow.

As he and the Soviet leadership toasted each other to total about four hours, would seek assurances that the Nixon Doctrine of limited U.S. commitments overseas will not disrupt the substantial flow of American military assistance to his oil-rich country.

One major accident reported

Poconos has near perfect record

STROUDSBURG — Memorial Day motorists in the Pocono area turned in one of the cleanest holiday driving records recorded in the past six years with only one major accident reported over the three day weekend.

The National Safety Council predicted two would die and 45 would be injured in this area.

Two Tannersville teenagers were treated and released at the General Hospital of Monroe County Sunday after the car they were riding in went out of control at the intersection of Business Route 209 and Rt. 209 in Marshalls Creek and struck a tree.

Bonnie Lou Knowles and Jannie Scheller were taken to the hospital by the Marshalls Creek Rescue Squad ambulance while the driver of the vehicle, John McWilliam, 21, of West Palm Beach, Fla., was arrested by state police from the Stroudsburg barracks for driving while under the influence.

Another passenger in the auto, Kenneth Imovitz, 17, escaped injury.

In the six-year tally presented by the Lehigh Valley Chapter of the National Safety Council, 1970 represented the worst traffic accident year on record. While only 44 accidents were in the statistics for that year, 14 persons died in the period.

Last year there were again 44 traffic mishaps with 31 injuries and four fatalities over a 78-hour period.

New York had 36, Florida and Ohio 26, Tennessee 20 and Texas and Michigan, 19.

National death toll mounts

By United Press International

The traffic death toll climbed steadily Monday as thousands of holiday motorists headed home from the Memorial Day weekend.

An average of more than 6 1/2 persons an hour had died in auto crashes since the 78-hour period, from 6 p.m. local time Friday through midnight Monday, began.

The National Safety Council predicted between 530 and 630 people would be killed in the United States during the holiday period. Last year's death toll was 557.

A United Press International count at 10 p.m. EDT showed 494 traffic fatalities.

A breakdown of deaths:

Traffic 494
Drownings 123
Plane 17
Other 63 Total 697

California alone counted for more than 10 per cent of the traffic fatalities with 52 deaths.

Prince Philip, husband of the queen, cut short a visit to Muenster, Germany. Princess Margaret too, like the queen, was a niece of the Duke of Windsor, returned from Italy. Prince Charles, heir to the throne, was expected in London in a day or two from service with the Mediterranean fleet.

All the members of the royal family will be on hand to lend solace to the 75-year-old duchess at Buckingham Palace, where she has been invited to stay as a guest—for the first time—over the funeral period.

This privilege was never granted her during the lifetime of the duke, whose self-imposed exile was embittered by the desire to end his days in his own country.

But he felt he could not return until his duchess was accepted and raised to his own rank of a royal highness.

The plane bearing his body will be met at the RAF base by another of his nephews, the Duke of Kent. The Duchess of Kent was a commoner elevated to a royal highness on her marriage.

Court mourning, with flags at half staff all over the kingdom, was decreed by the queen to last until sunset the day of the funeral at St. George's.

The duke's grandfather, King Edward VII; father, King George V and brother, King George VI, are buried in St. George's, along with a number of great predecessors such as King Henry VIII. But he himself chose the garden of the most private of royal residences, Frogmore House, where Queen Victoria and her consort, Prince Albert, occupy the mausoleum.

His duchess will someday lie beside him.

The duke's death and the intensity of the abdication crisis of 1936 may have seemed remote at first to younger Britons. But by Monday, there were few who were not aware of the great romance that shook an empire. Special programs on television and radio and front page space in the newspapers made sure of that.

Whatever happens in Britain tradition goes on. On Wednesday judges and those bewigged lawyers qualified to call themselves queen's counsel will wear "weepers" to mark official mourning. These are strips of white cloth about six inches wide worn around the wrists of court robes. Their neckbands will have three pleats instead of the usual two.

Highlights of Soviet, U.S. pact

MOSCOW (UPI)—Highlights of the joint U.S.-Soviet communique signed Monday by President Nixon and General Secretary Leonid I. Brezhnev of the Soviet Communist Party:

Bilateral relations: The two sides agreed the improvement of relations was "possible and desirable." The number of agreements reached during the week will "intensify bilateral cooperation."

Limiting strategic arms: The two sides gave "primary attention to the problem of reducing nuclear war." Strategic arms limitation treaty was a "major step towards curbing and ultimately ending the arms race." Additional negotiations for further limitations on offensive strategic arms will be held.

Indochina: No agreement, but each established "its respective standpoint." The United States said it believed quickest way to end the war was to resolve return of all American captives, implement cease-fire and subsequent withdrawal of all American forces in four months.

Soviets maintained their support "for the freedom, independence and social progress" of citizens in Laos, Cambodia and Vietnam. Demanded immediate stop to bombing.

Middle East: Both sides said they supported the mediation role of U.N. special envoy Gunnar V. Jarring and settlement in accordance with U.N. Security Council Resolution.

Europe: Both sides agreed that since progress had been made on Berlin issue, a European security conference should be held "without undue delay." Also agreed to begin parallel negotiations on mutual and balanced troop and weapon reductions in Central Europe.

Disarmament: Agreed to actively participate in negotiations aimed at working out new measures designed to curb and end the arms race. "The ultimate purpose is general and complete disarmament including nuclear disarmament under strict international controls."

Derailed tank car spews nitric acid clouds into sky

CHARLESTON, Ill. (UPI)—An estimated 2,500 persons in a 40 square mile rural area of east-central Illinois were alerted to evacuate the area Monday after bright orange clouds of dangerous nitric acid spewed from a derailed tank car.

About eight hours after the derailment authorities sounded an all-clear and residents were allowed to return to their homes.

Eleven persons, all complaining of a burning sensation in their lungs from the acid fumes, were treated at Charleston Community hospital and released. Exposed areas of skin were washed and they were given medication to soothe the burning.

"No one has had a bad dose. No one is serious," Mrs. Penny Pearcey, the emergency room nurse, said.

But Coles County Civil Defense Director Mark Busekris said those who might have been exposed to the clouds of acid should be alert for possible delayed reactions.

"People may not have been burned by the gas itself. They may have been exposed and not know it and come down ill 24 or 48 hours later," he said.

The evacuation alarm was sounded after 22 cars of an 80-car Penn Central freight train, eastbound from St. Louis to Columbus, Ohio, derailed about eight miles east of here.

A tank car, carrying more than 15,000 gallons of liquid nitric acid, ruptured and leaked about 90 per cent of its cargo on the right-of-way and into a nearby wheat field. The acid formed a brilliant orange cloud, visible two miles away, that was pushed northward by the wind.

Vegetation in the immediate area of the derailment withered and turned yellow a few hours after the derailment.

Officials, warning that inhalation of large doses of acid fumes could cause fatal lung damage, at one point called for the evacuation of an area between the derailment site and Oakland, 10 miles to the northeast, and Kansas, four miles east of the wreckage.

Officials warned farmers to prevent livestock from drinking water that might have been contaminated by the acid cloud. Makeshift dams were erected around the derailment site to keep the liquid acid from draining into nearby water courses.

The evacuation area was later narrowed to a radius of two to three miles of the wreckage and finally an all-clear was given for the entire area.

Davis to close own case

SAN JOSE, Calif. (UPI)—The Angela Davis trial enters its final stage today, with the 28-year-old black militant expected to deliver the concluding defense arguments herself.

Miss Davis is acting as her own co-counsel and in that role gave the opening arguments when the trial got under way three months ago. Should she deliver the closing arguments, she would be addressing the jury without having to undergo cross examination.

The prosecution may present some rebuttal testimony today before the final arguments begin. Prosecutor Albert W. Harris said he was considering calling one witness in an effort to refute defense testimony.

In the unexpectedly brief defense portion of the trial, several witnesses placed Miss Davis in Southern California at the time of the Marin County courthouse violence in which four persons died.

The state contends the black militant UCLA faculty member plotted the attempt by 17-year-old Jonathan Jackson to kidnap court officials and hold them for the release of his brother, George Jackson, and several other San Quentin inmates. The prosecutor said Miss Davis was motivated by a passionate love for George Jackson.

The prosecution case was built mainly on circumstantial evidence, including testimony that Miss Davis owned the guns used by young Jackson, and that she was seen in the area of the civic center a day before the Aug. 7, 1970 violence.

Miss Davis' attorneys conceded the guns were bought by their client.

Guardsmen patrol riot area

CONCORD, N.C. (UPI)—More than 300 National Guardsmen carrying rifles but no live ammunition patrolled a mile-square section of this textile town Monday after a second consecutive night of burning and looting.

The trouble was touched off Saturday afternoon by the shooting and wounding of a young black, Paul Daniel Johnson, 23, Jimmy Miles, a 35-year-old white storekeeper from nearby Kannapolis, was charged with the shooting.

"This incident has brought about a riot and total disrespect for law and order by some of the blacks in our city," declared Mayor Alfred M. Brown as he announced the arrival of the guardsmen at a predawn news conference.

Meanwhile, an 8:30 p.m. to 6 a.m. (EDT) curfew remained in effect for the town of 25,000, located about 20 miles north of Charlotte. The guardsmen, who began assembling shortly after midnight, sealed off the troubled mile-square black neighborhood area as fires erupted during the night.

South Vietnamese reinforcements have been trying to break through to An Loc since April 11. The town, once a prosperous rubber plantation community of 12,000, has been pounded to rubble by the heaviest Communist shelling of the war.

One Communist barrage also blew up 100 rounds of government artillery ammunition and wounded at least two South Vietnamese soldiers.

Escaped female prisoners lead police in wild chase

NEW YORK (UPI)—Four female inmates, one holding a knife to the neck of a 62-year-old jail matron, escaped from a Connecticut prison farm Monday and led a fleet of police cars on a wild, two-state chase at up to 120 miles per hour before they were captured.

During the chase involving Connecticut, New York State and New York City police, the women crashed one getaway car, stole another and successfully smashed through a road barricade set up at a toll station on the New England Thruway.

"They hit 120 mph on the thruway and did 100 mph on New York City streets," said New York State Trooper John Birmingham, whose police unit finally cornered the fugitives on the city's upper West Side.

Birmingham identified the driver as Karlene Nelson, 29,

"She was the best woman driver I have ever seen. I can't get over the way she drove. It was really something," he said. Police said Miss Nelson described herself as a "former stock car driver in New Jersey."

One of the women pulled a knife on matron Elizabeth Dinan at Niantic State Farm for Women while they were being stripped and searched prior to admission. They had been arrested in nearby Greenwich Sunday night on auto theft and weapons charges.

They took Mrs. Dinan hostage and escaped in another matron's auto, authorities said. Mrs. Dinan was later released in New Haven, Conn., where she was reported in good condition.

After smashing through the toll barrier, authorities said six Connecticut police cars and three New York State police cars gave chase at speeds that "averaged 100 mph."

As they entered the city, police units from four precincts also gave chase before they were forced off the road and captured. Authorities said they tried to run from their vehicle but were caught by Birmingham and his partner, J.J. Baxter.

Miss Nelson and the other women, tentatively identified as Marsha Long, 29, Ann Griffin, 31, Barbara Jones, 27, and Gloria Sanders, 25, all of Bridgeport, Conn., were treated for minor injuries.

S. Vietnamese troops push Communists from Kontum

SAIGON (UPI)—South Vietnamese troops recaptured a school and pushed some Communist troops out of the Central Highlands city of Kontum Monday, but American sources said the North Vietnamese may have withdrawn to prepare for a fresh attack.

U.S. warplanes continued attacks on Communist supply lines and transportation facilities in North Vietnam. The U.S. command said American raiders flew 280 strikes over the north Sunday, destroying or damaging three railroad bridges, two highway bridges, a portoon bridge and three river ferries.

Kontum, 260 miles north of Saigon, has been under attack for five days. Communist troops earlier captured the school, an orphanage and parts of two military bases but have been unsuccessful in major assaults against government defenses.

In An Loc, 60 miles north of Saigon, Communist gunners killed or wounded 100 South Vietnamese trying to fight their way into the surrounded city.

Heavy fighting also was reported near Dat Do not far from Saigon and in the Mekong Delta near the Cambodian border. Government troops said they killed 194 Communists in two battles around artillery base Bastogne southwest of Hue but relatively little action was reported north of the old Imperial Capital.

The main Communist push was at Kontum, a provincial capital of 27,000 persons. The North Vietnamese want to capture the city as part of a major plan to control the Central Highlands and move eastward to the coast, cutting South Vietnam in half.

UPI reporter Matt Franjola and UPI photographer Jeff Taylor flew to Kontum and said most of the city appeared untouched by the war, despite the heavy fighting and North Vietnamese shelling.

Most of the city's residents fled southward weeks ago but those who stayed went about their business as usual. The city's airfield was closed because of enemy ground fire but supplies were dropped by U.S. C-130 Hercules cargo planes and American Army CH-47 Chinook helicopters.

U.S. B-52s flew 16 bombing missions around the city and U.S. and South Vietnamese fighters made 150 raids. The strikes were credited with killing most of the 168 Communists claimed by the South Vietnamese Sunday.

The heavy air strikes, however, did not stop periodic Communist rocket and artillery assaults. Franjola said the city was hit by 100 shells Sunday.

Field reports from the front near An Loc said North Vietnamese gunners fired more than 1,000 mortar rounds on a relief column three miles from the city and hit two other government forces six and 15 miles south of An Loc.

South Vietnamese reinforcements have been trying to break through to An Loc since April 11. The town, once a prosperous rubber plantation community of 12,000, has been pounded to rubble by the heaviest Communist shelling of the war.

One Communist barrage also blew up 100 rounds of government artillery ammunition and wounded at least two South Vietnamese soldiers.

Kennedy visits George Wallace

SILVER SPRING, Md. (UPI)—Sen. Edward M. Kennedy visited George C. Wallace in the hospital on Memorial Day, and later an aide said the Alabama governor had decided to mount a write-in campaign in the California presidential primary.

Kennedy, whose two brothers were killed by assassins' bullets, and his wife Joan visited Wallace in Holy Cross Hospital about 8 a.m. for 25 minutes. Wallace is paralyzed from the waist down from gunshot wounds suffered while campaigning in nearby Laurel, Md., May 15.

Later Wallace spent 40 minutes with Charles Snider, his campaign director, discussing the California and New Mexico primaries. Snider told reporters that it was decided to use television and newspaper ads to encourage a write-in vote in California where Wallace is not on the ballot. Wallace's son also will campaign for him.

"This will be extremely difficult and will require a good job of indoctrinating the voters on how to write Wallace's name in," Snider said.

Wallace's wife, Cornelia, asked the governor, according to Snider, "Do you still want the nomination?"

"Yes," Snider quoted Wallace as replying.

Snider said that probably this week Wallace will record radio campaign messages. He said there were no plans to tape television spots until Wallace "can be properly attired."

Snider said Wallace wanted people to forget as soon as possible that he was shot because Wallace saw no way the shooting "can help the governor (in his campaign) or the American people."

Snider was accompanied by Alton Dauphin, assistant campaign director; Frank Daniel, Wallace's national youth director; and Billy Joe Camp, his press aide.

Snider said it was decided that George Wallace Jr., will campaign in behalf of his father during the next 8 to 10 days before the California and New Mexico elections.

Snider would not predict a Wallace victory in California but noted that in primaries so far, the governor had gotten more popular votes than either Sens. George S. McGovern or Hubert H. Humphrey.

Asked about Wallace's chances at the Democratic convention in Miami Beach, Snider said the governor was a proven vote-getter, adding "our trump card is the popular vote."

Snider said Wallace's doctors had assured that the governor "will be able to be in complete control of his campaign organization" at Miami Beach.

IRA bows to peace demands

BELFAST (UPI)—One wing of the Irish Republican Army (IRA) bowed Monday night to growing Roman Catholic demands for peace and announced an "indefinite" cease-fire in Northern Ireland, effective immediately.

The announcement came first from the Dublin headquarters of the politically-oriented "official" IRA. It was corroborated at once by an officials' spokesman in Belfast.

The militant "provisional" wing, which claims most responsibility for nearly three years of violence in Ulster, stood firm to its demands that British troops leave the province and political detainees be released before it laid down arms.

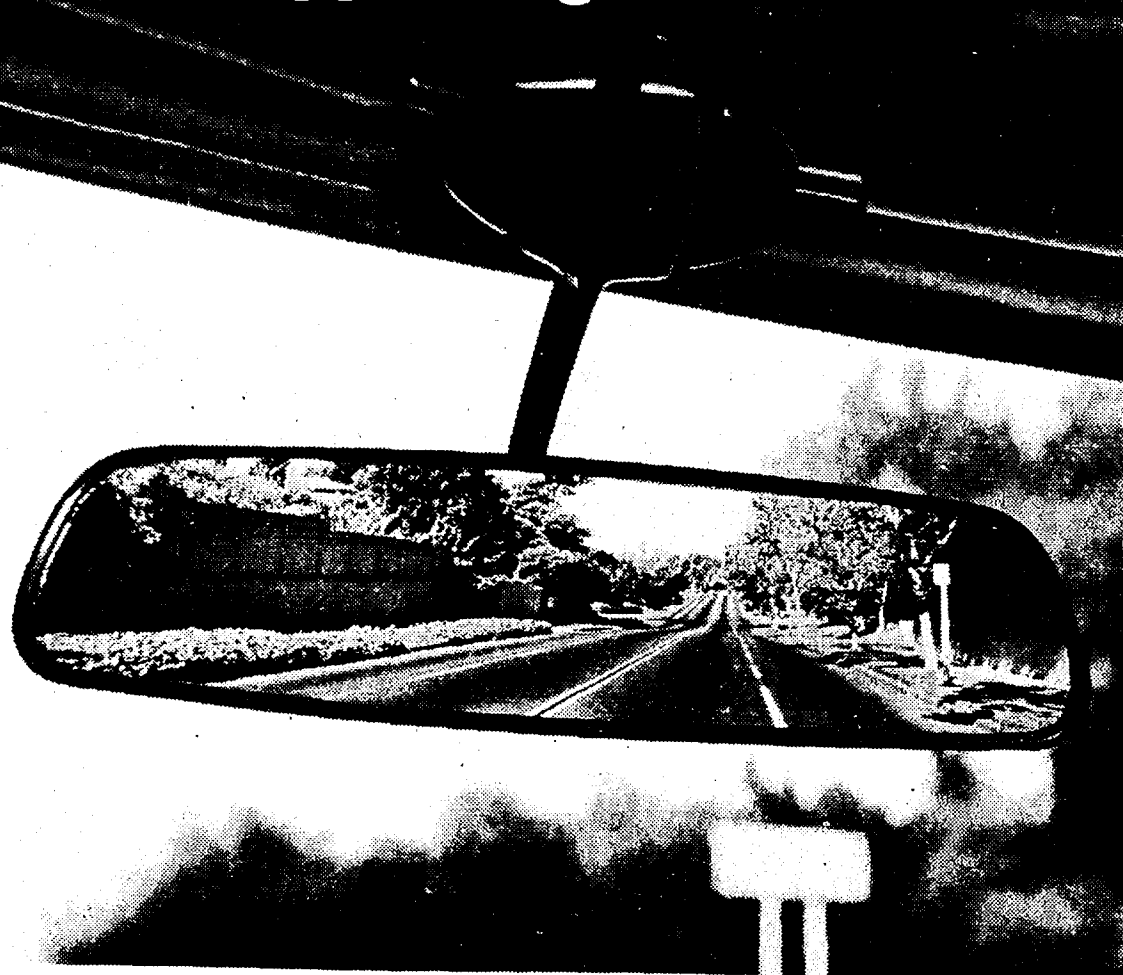

Before the announcement came in Dublin, Protestants pulled down barricades in their Belfast neighborhoods, warning the roadblocks would go up again if British troops did not move against the IRA.

The IRA, meanwhile, claimed the explosion which killed four of its officers and two other persons Sunday was planted by a team of unknown intruders in the Catholic Short Strand district.

The official wing said in Dublin its cease-fire decision resulted from "growing danger of sectarian conflict" in Northern Ireland. An official wing spokesman in Belfast said his branch "had agreed to this proposal, but it is emphasized that it will reserve the right to resort to arms again in self-defense, or if attacked by the military or sectarian forces."

Roman Catholics in Belfast and Londonderry have tried for more than a week to persuade the IRA to stop the bombs and bullets which have killed 348 persons since August, 1969.

Motorcycles have a way of disappearing.

With nearly seven million of them on the road, motorcycles are very big these days. They're also small. And hard to see.

A motorcycle coming up behind you can disappear from your rear-view mirror even before you know he's there. He can be completely out of sight for dangerous seconds. Hidden in a blind spot on your left or right.

In a large percentage of accidents involving cars and motorcycles, the automobile driver says: "I just didn't see him!"

A rear-view mirror can't do everything for you. Your new car dealer reminds you that a good defensive driver always gets the full picture before changing lanes, turning corners, making any move. To help fill in the blanks, glance in your side mirror. (If you don't have one, get one.) To complete the picture, glance quickly over your shoulder. Then signal your move. So the guy behind you will get the full picture, too.

Cost of Vanity

By MAUREEN RUFFE
Pocono Record Reporter

GILBERT — This weekend I came to the conclusion that our society is truly vain.

As I looked down at the druggist's checkout counter, the long parade of hair spray, make-up, eye liner, blusher, deodorant, feminine hygiene spray, tooth polish, and many more products hypnotized my senses.

The clicking of prices continued until the grand total of $13.67 was rung up on the register. As I paid the bill, I passed off the cost by rationalizing that all these wonderful "modern" products were truly necessary for my daily existence.

But somehow, that $13.67 stuck in my mind and after I left the store, I began to really wonder if I needed all the goos and sprays.

I came to the obvious conclusions that most of the products were merely cosmetic and that all those "beauty" corporations were appealing to my vanity.

After all, 30 years ago, a woman had lipstick and pancake make-up at her disposal. There were no hair sprays, fancy deodorants, or 50 different kinds of blushers, glosses, tints, or toners.

False eyelashes were reserved for movie stars, shaving legs was a real taboo, and when you had thin straight hair, you had to live with it.

There were no body building hair rinses, no bath oil beads, fancy setting lotions or fake fingernails.

In those days, the natural look was for real. Today most "modern" women spend $20 and two hours applying make-up trying to achieve the same look.

As I contemplated what life would be like without my "necessities," a particularly beautiful, middle-aged West End resident said hello.

I commented on her beautiful complexion and she summed up my predicament in one sentence.

"I have nice skin cause I used plain old soap and water on it for the last 50 years," she said, "and you could have it too if you threw away all that junk!"

Invigorated and determined to go back to nature, I returned home and took off my make-up and washed out the hair spray and setting gel.

Excitedly I looked in the mirror at the new me. In sheer horror I stared at my face, a wilted sickly-looking, white petunia.

Try as I might, I could not overcome the coercion of those cosmetic advertisers.

I was too vain to stay that way. In a matter of minutes, the make-up was back on and the sprays were spraying again.

Like it or not, I realized I was trapped by modern society, modern mores, and modern advertising.

Summit pacts victory for all

Never in the modern history of "summitry" (what a horrid word!) has so much been accomplished in so little time by so few men.

That could prove that both sides had done their homework or that the time had long passed when such agreements as made were due, or that the United States and the Soviet Union had grown so far apart since the "spirit of Glassboro" that much had to be done to bridge the gap — or, if one were to be unkind, that both President Nixon and Premier Leonid Brezhnev being politically savvy fellows, they recognized their own personal need for obvious accomplishment on an international scale, both having failed on the domestic front.

Whatever the reasons, some very encouraging agreements were reached between these two frightening super-powers. A common war on cancer and other health menaces is encouraging in scope and possibilities; a joint space venture points to the day when man's eternal quest for knowledge beyond his reach will be more efficient and less costly than going it alone; the prospect of an in-depth trade agreement bears good tidings to our chronic balance of payments problem and to the average Russian's desire for a higher standard of living.

And, of course, the climactic agreement to limit the nuclear arms race takes center stage. Granted, the limit is on numbers only (we will still be striving for bigger, better nuclear warheads and delivery systems, but we just can't have more than we already now have) and each signatory nation may cancel the agreement upon six months' notice and the gut feeling that its national security is at stake.

But the fact that both nations are interested in toning down this expensive folly is encouraging in itself. Both nations apparently have realized that there are greater threats to their citizenry than each other: the increasingly polluted environment, the stubborn existence of poverty, the growing scarcity of natural resources, the abrasive restiveness of the young, who see little profit in carrying a big stick when each nation's society has such obvious weaknesses... the list goes on and on.

But we mustn't think that these summit agreements are a total victory, or even a partial one, on a national basis. The Soviets are still keenly interested in carrying on their crusade of communism and in retaining control over their serf states in eastern Europe. And we are still keenly interested in blunting that ambition wherever it arises.

There is, in effect, still ample room for conflict and confrontation. But the room has narrowed somewhat, and for that we are thankful. There are still the thorny problems of Vietnam, the Middle East, the Asian sub-continent and Cuba. And there is still the looming presence of China.

But there is also the hope that we are about to put aside childish dreams of national supremacy and concentrate on international humanity. No, no one nation is the winner in this summit season. The real winner is every human being who walks the earth and hopes, eternally, for a better tomorrow.

Merry-go-round

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — Sen. Ted Kennedy, D-Mass., after first refusing to endorse Sen. George McGovern for the Democratic presidential nomination, has now agreed to throw his support to McGovern if the crucial California primary appears close.

Earlier, Kennedy turned down a personal appeal from McGovern for an endorsement. "You've already got my whole family," begged off Kennedy, who has tried to make it a rule to keep out of other people's primaries.

But later, Kennedy indicated through intermediaries that he would help McGovern in California if his support would be decisive. The Massachusetts senator has a strong following among California's blacks and chicanos, who lean toward Hubert Humphrey but could be influenced by Kennedy.

Both McGovern and Humphrey consider it essential to carry California, whose huge bloc of delegates will go to the winner no matter how small his victory margin may be.

This has pitted the two contenders in a high-noon showdown. The drama is heightened by the fact that they are close personal friends and former next-door neighbors. When McGovern was sick, Humphrey brought him hot soup.

For the sake not only of their friendship but the prospects of defeating President Nixon in November, McGovern and Humphrey have agreed not to cut up one another in the California primary. They have also established an informal liaison to stop their political disciples from engaging in smear politics.

Already, McGovern has stopped the circulation of campaign pictures showing Humphrey warmly greeting Georgia's former racist governor, Lester Maddox. McGovern also wouldn't let his campaign refer to the Vietnam War as "the Johnson-Humphrey War."

Humphrey, for his part, has stopped the distribution of material purporting to show that McGovern is anti-Israel.

But as high noon approaches on June 6, there may be a temptation in the rival camps to throw a final punch.

Defending Peking

In an unusually conciliatory move toward Peking, the White House is vigorously mobilizing the Administration to fight what it calls "arrant nonsense" about Red China's role in world dope trafficking.

The White House gesture toward Mao Tse-tung comes even as President Nixon is wooing Mao's arch rival in the Communist world, Soviet party head Leonid Brezhnev.

A White House memo contains evidence that Richard Nixon, once the implacable foe of Communist China, is now defending China. The memo was circulated quietly to the Departments of State, Defense, Treasury and the U.S. Information Agency.

The memo urges them to fight "propaganda" against Red China. Included with the memo is a two-page briefing paper prepared by the federal intelligence agencies on Red China and opium.

"The attached report... answers in detail allegations that the PRC (Communist China) is flooding the western world with illicit opium," declares the memo from White House drug information director Richard Harkness, formerly an NBC newscaster.

"It is earnestly suggested that this factual report be used as a bible for all of us in replying to and countering any propaganda to the contrary. We must cut down this kind of arrant nonsense."

The "bible" included with the memo contends that a "persistent propaganda campaign... is being promoted in this country by a number of groups who have consistently opposed normalization of relations between the U.S. and the PRC."

"Propaganda leaflets" against Red China contain a June 23, 1966, quote by Chou En-lai to the late President Gamal Nasser of Egypt. In it, Chou allegedly said that "we are planting the best kinds of opium especially for the American soldiers in Vietnam..."

The White House report points out that "it was not until mid-1970 that drug abuse among U.S. servicemen in Vietnam reached serious proportions."

"Moreover, no evidence has yet been produced to indicate any attempt on the part of Peking to introduce opium or heroin into Vietnam."

The White House also maintains that China strictly controls opium production. Even in the old opium belts of Yunnan province, states the briefing paper, there is no "significant illicit cross-border movements" to the outside world.

"The tight political control exercised by the (Red Chinese) government over its citizens has probably made the enforcement of these laws quite effective in most areas," the White House claims.

Kennedy backs McGovern

Why not sympathy for Wallace?

Editor, The Record:

Before writing this, I said to myself, "Why should I waste my time replying to Schenk's letter of May 20 denouncing Gov. Wallace; from the tone of his remarks it is apparent that the open mind he was born with has since given way to the liberal teachings and writings so prevalent in our so-called 'sick society' today."

But then again I thought, "Why not: why should he go gaily on his way spreading his kind of impassionate, unsympathetic, and misleading remarks?"

Schenk tells readers that they should not waste sympathy on Gov. Wallace because the governor was guilty of spreading hatred and "so reaped what he had sown."

To my knowledge Wallace doesn't hate anyone; (watch your use of that word, Schenk, surely it will get you in trouble) but, I'll agree that the Governor does deplore many of the money-wasting policies and experimental programs in operation today which feebly try to correct social ills; most of these programs having been dreamed up in the coo-coo factories which today are called colleges.

It is beyond me why anyone would ask that no sympathy be given to Wallace who lies paralyzed in a hospital bed; all he did was campaign, like many others, in a primary for presidential nomination votes. Is this a crime? Why not give sympathy to Gov. Wallace?

After all, when attacked he was campaigning for elective office, thereby doing what we are told to do if we want to get into a position to attempt to change government policies legally and within the framework of our laws.

Schenk quotes the New York Times as stating that responsibility for Martin Luther King's death was to be shared by all those who spread hatred and racism in our society. Now, here again is the favorite line of the liberal thinker; blame society, that will take care of and explain everything.

Countless times I have heard it said that society is to blame, you and me; this is nonsense because we, each one of us, is only responsible for his own acts and should not be told that an illegal act by another is our fault and responsibility.

Schenk criticizes George Wallace for his stand at a university protesting a Supreme Court decision ordering integration. I also remember many instances of students on campus, rioting, sitting in or down for one reason or another, thus preventing those who wanted to attend class from attending.

I also remember people lying down across highways, bombing buildings, sitting down in public officials' offices, burning the flag and draft cards, defiantly smoking pot in parks, boycotting and or shaking down legitimate business establishments, and also there were those who conspired to kidnap a public official.

All these unlawful acts being committed, it was claimed, for social justice.

In view of the above, why should Wallace be singled out as a lawbreaker, when all around us today there are people with a cause, usually liberal, acting in an unlawful manner to achieve their ends. In view of the "Slap on the wrist" treatment they get, it would seem to me that they operate from underneath the protection of a judicial "hailo."

Oh, I know what is bugging people like Schenk; simply put, it is the success that Wallace has experienced on his primary tour; they get the message: Wallace has many supporters and to call all of them espousers of hatred would be quite an undertaking, because they happen to be voters who are concerned about busing, high taxes, welfare, inflation, tax loopholes, etc.

There is one very important thing that liberal thinkers must remember and that is there are people who do not agree with the liberal ways of approaching and trying to solve our problems, and to call these people haters, racists, or what have you is completely wrong and only tends to widen the breach between the left and right.

Make no mistake about it, the conservative will always be here steadfastly trying to get his message across and no amount of name-calling will make him disappear.

Objects to commissioning

Editor, The Record:

A day of hope for man's future; a day to honor the qualities of tolerance and benevolence was marred and subverted by what I consider to be an act of bad judgment, namely, to commission a second lieutenant into the United States Marine Corps before thousands of parents and students at the graduation ceremonies on May 25 at East Stroudsburg State College.

The swearing in of a marine officer thus assumed the importance of a student's culminating four-year experience at an institution that should represent humaneness, peaceful co-existence, and a rational non-violent approach to solving man's problems.

McGovern II: Oddities

In a recent column I pointed out that the tax reform measures being proposed by Sen. George McGovern, whatever they might do to the rich — who, as experience shows, have more than one way of protecting their dough — would in fact impose crushing burdens on the $12 - 20,000 middle American. And these proposals are the heart of the McGovern program.

There are other McGovern proposals, not at the heart of his program, but, still, revealing enough.

Take this one. McGovern says he can raise an additional $5 billion per year through confiscatory taxation of inheritances above $500,000. Initially, McGovern proposed a 100 per cent tax, but more recently altered this to 77 per cent, perhaps as a concession to moderation.

Tawney cited

There are two sorts of response here, the moral and the practical. Some temperaments, such as the British socialist historian R. H. Tawney, simply detest the idea of inheritance. The idea that infant A may be born rich, while infant B is not, outrages their sense of fairness. One suspects that McGovern shares this emotion.

There is another moral response to inheritance. Edmund Burke delighted in the variety of society and the actuality of wealth. He saw it as, in many ways, socially beneficial. And he thought that the prospect of passing on to one's heirs the rewards of one's work was one of the consolations of the human lot.

Actually, no argument or fact can reconcile these opposing preferences. One tends to a general leveling, the other to a more various and unequal condition.

But to descend to the practical level, there can be no doubt about the effect of McGovern's proposal.

At the very best, McGovern might collect his $5 billion once — the first year his tax went into effect. After that, the taxpayers affected would make sure they died broke.

Spend or give?

Why would a man not spend his pile, spend it on anything, even throw it out a window or into the ocean, rather than give it to taxing George?

Far short of that, other possibilities would emerge. A lot of money, certainly, would leave the country, and foreign countries would find it in their interest to encourage this outflow. Our balance of payments? Well, why give it to George, when you can go into business in, say, Geneva?

Besides encouraging profligate spending, the McGovern scheme would cause people to work less and retire earlier, and it would discourage investment.

George McGovern, clearly enough, did not think this proposal through before espousing it. It is a minor point. But that he could thus lightly propose it tells us a good deal about him.

And that he could be endorsed by economists like John Kenneth Galbraith and Paul Samuelson tells us, also, much about these economists. Or, it may be, they have inhaled some of the pot fumes wafting around in Cambridge, Mass.

Hard to breathe...

Doctors are sometimes confronted with the difficult problem of deciding the exact cause of obstruction to breathing. Technically, this is known as making a "differential" diagnosis.

The decision that the patient's condition is asthma, bronchitis or even cystic fibrosis, is often a difficult one to make.

Recently a very sensitive test was devised by Dr. Thomas E. Van Metre, Jr. of Johns Hopkins Hospital in Baltimore.

A single specimen of sputum can now be "read" to make the important differential diagnosis. This is of great importance because often there is an urgent need to know the exact cause of the difficulty in respiration, in order to begin treatment immediately.

There are many other conditions of the heart and malformations that can produce wheezing and thus confuse the physician.

Widespread efforts are being made by black medical and nursing students, and physicians, to combat sickle cell anemia. This disease has a high incidence among the black population.

The black students at the Cornell University Medical College in New York City have been teaching a large group of high school students the danger involved if young married couples both have the sickle cell trait.

A special test is now available that can detect the disease. If it is present, guidance counselors will suggest adopting children rather than chancing the possibility of children being born with this condition.

Dr. Lester Coleman has prepared a special booklet entitled "Alcoholism ... A Family Disease." It probes this grave problem and offers hopeful advice. For your copy, send 25 cents in coin and a large, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Lester L. Coleman, M.C. (Alcoholism booklet) in care of The Pocono Record. Please mention the booklet by title.

Iran to seek continued aid

TEHERAN (UPI)—Diplomatic sources said Monday the Shah of Iran would seek assurances of continued U.S. military support when President Nixon visits here today.

Nixon planned a 24-hour stopover in Tehran following his historic trip to the Soviet Union. The government, concerned about urban guerrilla activities, ordered extra tight security during the visit.

Two discussion sessions of up to four hours were planned between Nixon and the Shah who has ruled Iran for 31 years.

Shah Reza Mohammed Pahlavi has been concerned about isolationist trends in the United States which he believes are leading the U.S. toward a "fortress America" foreign policy with limited foreign commitments, diplomatic sources said.

The sources said Iran relies more heavily on the U.S. than any other foreign power and wants to be assured it will not be abandoned by Washington.

Iran has developed stability and prosperity unparalleled in the Middle East during the Shah's rule.

Economy Minister Houshang Ansary has described oil-rich Iran as "an island of stability."

Pentagon spending criticized

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., charged Monday that the Pentagon is trying to conceal from Congress a $1.2 billion cost overrun in the Navy's F-14 jet fighter.

"Why doesn't the Pentagon tell us the truth?" Proxmire asked.

His colleague, Sen. Gaylord Nelson, D-Wis., meantime proposed that Congress consider the Pentagon's appropriations on a five-year basis instead of annually.

In his statement Proxmire said: "The Navy persists in telling Congress that it can hold Grumman Aerospace Corp. to its present contract and require development and production of 13 F-14s at a total cost of almost $5.3 billion, or $16.8 million per plane."

In a sea of Middle East turbulence.

Diplomatic sources said however there was anxiety that events in neighboring countries over the past year would have harmful effects on Iran's progress.

In recent months India has signed a treaty with the Soviet Union. Pakistan was dismembered by the war that produced Bangladesh.

The radical Socialist regime in Iraq has signed a treaty with the Soviet Union too and border clashes between Iran and Iraq have escalated steeply this year.

Following Britain's withdrawal from the Persian Gulf, Iran occupied three strategic gulf islands — Abu Moussa, Big Tumb and Little Tumb — provoking a chorus of wrath from the Arab states. Political sources say Iran is closely watching developments in the tiny gulf sheikdoms formerly protected by Britain and now linked in the Union of Arab Emirates.

The fear here is that radical regimes such as Baghdad's Baath party will try to encourage the growth of Baathist regimes in the sheikdoms.

The U.S. government provides Iran with credit for military purchases in the United States totaling some $100 million a year, and direct purchases about double that figure. The Iranian air force is almost 100 per cent U.S. trained and supplied. A further $500,000 is provided for training servicemen in the United States.

Any policy change which would force Iran to switch from its close military relations with the United States would jeopardize its security and the Shah wants to be sure the tie-up will continue, sources said.

In addition to worries about what is happening in the nations around him, the Shah has his own internal problems. Chief of these has been the growing urban guerrilla problems.

Last Friday five men, sentenced to death by a special military tribunal for anti-state acts, were executed by firing squad. They were found guilty of planting bombs, arson and bank robbery. Their deaths brought to 28 the number of persons executed in Iran this year for anti-state activities.

Lawmakers predict tax hike inevitable

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A House-Senate report showed Monday that Congress already has added $1 billion to President Nixon's spending plans and likely will add several billion more, prompting some key lawmakers to predict a tax increase is inevitable.

Their prediction, usually delivered in private at this point, runs directly counter to the White House's assertion that Nixon doesn't want a tax increase and the way to bring spending into line is to cut some existing programs.

The new report by the House-Senate Committee on Reduction of Federal Expenditures showed that Congress added almost $1 billion to the President's budget for the fiscal year beginning July 1, most of it for benefits to miners suffering from black lung disease, or their dependents.

Bills still being considered and having passed one chamber or the other could run this budget-busting total up by several billion dollars more, the report indicated.

Additional spending is contemplated for veterans benefits, water pollution control and federal employee health benefits, among other areas.

The joint committee, in its second staff report this year on the battle of the budget, suggested that the deficit for the year ending June 30 may be from $9 billion to $13 billion less than the $38.8 billion forecast in January. A January estimate of a $25.5 billion deficit in the next fiscal year may be slightly raised, the report concluded.

This revision primarily reflects the fact that most workers have been paying too much in withholding taxes since Jan. 1. This year's revenue gain thus becomes next year's revenue loss, since big refunds will be due when final income tax returns are filed for the year.

The joint committee, headed by Rep. George H. Mahon, D-Tex., who is also chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, seeks to focus attention on legislative other than appropriations actions that directly affect spending.

For example, in extending federal responsibility for treatment of black lung victims, the lawmakers have committed the government to an unbudgeted outlay of $968 million next year.

Some legislative actions affect the budget less directly.

The House has approved an $11 billion, two-year program of water pollution control while the Senate passed a $3 billion version of the same program. What finally is passed won't necessarily cost as much as is indicated by the authorization, since the President will have the final say on what is actually spent. Still, none of that money is included in this budget.

Most congressmen, like most Presidential candidates, would rather not talk about raising taxes. But many members agree with Mahon's assertion that the current deficit level is intolerable. And they don't see any big cut in spending.

Privately at least, many knowledgeable congressmen say the only answer is to raise taxes. One additional factor make this more likely. The government has been running up record deficits, justifying them partly on grounds that the economy needed stimulus. Now the need for that stimulation is less.

Car salesman to customer: "This car has the ultimate in safety devices. It won't run."

One of my favorite sayings around our store: When there's a piano to be moved, there are always lots of volunteers to pick up the bench.

I don't know why people are finding it so hard to communicate these days — but the new phone and postal rates may be part of the problem.

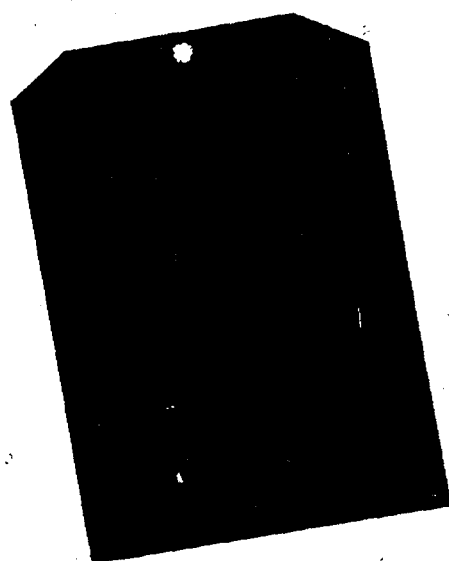

When a teenager dresses to kill, the victim is most likely to be time.

When a young person stops looking for the ideal situation and starts looking for a job, he's really accomplished something.

One job we'd like to take on at Rosen's Furniture is making you happy in furnishing your home. Mr. H. F. of Tobyhanna writes, "The service was excellent and so is your furniture. We are very happy with it. Thank you very much."

Aboard the good ship, the Jolly Lodger, the specialty came to be Crabmeat Omelette in White Wine Sauce. It looked like a lot of trouble ... and tasted like a lot of calories, but neither was true!

That's because I was the cook, and the Jolly Lodger was our tiny little houseboat. Houseboat cookery is always quick and easy — it had better be with kids and sheepdog nose-to-elbow in a galley the size of a shower stall.

Being a "galley gourmet," like the pictures in those boating magazines, is complicated by the almost-inevitable weekend invasion of "Yoo-hoos" (city acquaintances who pop up on the dock and call, "Yoo-hoo, we were just passing through and thought we'd drop in!") Yoo-hoos always stay for dinner, and expect something "seashore."

In the murky waters under our boat, nothing "seashore" survived but crabs — so we generally sent our visitors off on a crabbing expedition, armed with nets and pails. While they amused themselves poking the pilings we were free to get on with our weekend work project. When, sunburn or thirst took over, our crabhunters would return with their catch, generally not even enough to feed a fishmonger's cat after dinner. In any event, I would promptly release the creepy things out the back hatch. (I've had strong feelings about cooking crabs on our boat ever since one skittered out of the pot and into the dinette daybed-bunk. We found him easily the following weekend.) While the topside tinkling of ice cubes diverted our visitors' attention, I would whip out a few tins of crabmeat and the ship's can opener.

Slim Gourmet Crabmeat Omelette

In White Wine Sauce (Only 297 calories)

1 tablespoon butter or margarine
6 eggs, slightly beaten
2 cans (7 ounces each) crabmeat
1 tablespoon dried onion flakes
1/4 cups skimmed milk
1/4 cup white wine
1/2 tablespoons flour
1 teaspoon salt
pinch of pepper
paprika

Melt the butter or margarine in a large nonstick skillet. Pour on the eggs. Sprinkle the surface evenly with onion flakes and crabmeat. Continue cooking over moderate heat until the egg is set. An omelet this large cooked in very little fat is unwieldy to turn or roll. Instead, cut the omelet into four quarters and turn each section over carefully. Continue cooking only long enough to assure that the crabmeat is heated through.

While omelet is heating prepare the sauce: combine milk, wine, flour and

Church dinner for mothers and daughters

STROUDSBURG — The mother-daughter dinner for the Stroudsburg Presbyterian Church, sponsored by the Woman's Assn. was held Tuesday night in the assembly room, bright with spring flowers on the tables and wild-flower rock gardens, the work of Richard Turner, on the wide windowsills.

Entertainment was provided by young people of the church school and there was a display of the hobbies of mothers and their daughters.

Mrs. James Detrick presided at the informal meeting when rock gardens were awarded special mothers. Marietta Belzer was in charge of preparing the dinner which was served by the Girl Scout troop sponsored by the Women's Assn.

CERVICAL SPASM

By Dr. Thomas F. Snyder D.C.

Cervical spasm is a very painful condition of the neck in which there is a spasm of the muscles. This spasm makes movement of the neck very difficult, if not impossible, and the pain makes it unpleasant. Generally the neck cannot be moved without moving the body.

The position of the head in Cervical Spasm will vary, depends upon which muscles are in spasm.

It is known that the action of muscles is controlled by nerves. A muscle contracts when nerve impulses pass into the muscle, and the greater the number of the impulses passing into the muscles, in quick succession, the greater the degree of contraction of that muscle. Pressure on the nerves will cause a greater muscle contraction. This pressure arises from the spinal column. Chiropactic has had excellent response in Cervical Spasm which makes it advisable to consult a Chiropactor when suffering from this affliction.

(One of a series of articles published in the public interest to explain and illustrate the scientific practice of Chiropactic, written by Dr. Thomas F. Snyder, Chiropactic Orthopedist, Brodheadville, Pa. 18322. Ph. 992-4787).

Ann Landers

Dating hoax

Dear Ann Landers: I am 30 years old and have never married. People have always told me I am pretty, smart, and fun to be with. No one ever mentioned marriage. One day I became a little "adventurous" — or perhaps panicky is a better word — and sent my name (and check) to a scientific mate-matching foundation. I had received mailings from this "Foundation" and the letterheads carried the names of a well-known doctor and two nationally known clergymen. I was sure these people would not be connected with anything shoddy, but I was wrong.

I was put in touch with eight "prospects" in seven weeks. Five were unemployed and looking for a woman to keep them. Two were overt homosexuals — one offered to be my hairdresser and private secretary in exchange for marriage, if I'd let him keep his boyfriend. Another was a religious fanatic who wanted to know immediately if I would let him burn his initials on my back with a cigarette. The only "candidate" who seemed to have all his marbles had a severe physical handicap and told me with considerable anguish that he had met 30 women through the "foundation" — most of them crazy. For these leads he has already paid $380.

I am ashamed of myself for having been such a sucker. The public should be warned about these rackets. Tell the world, will you, Ann?

Seattle Chump

Dear Seattle: I HAVE been telling the world, and I will continue to tell those who are willing to listen. Thanks for the testimonial.

Vacation requiem

When you talk about it in years to come, you will refer to it as "The Last Family Vacation."

It will start out like a score of other family vacations... one kid will yell because he has to sit on the hard hump in the middle of the seat. Another will sulk for 300 miles because he can't hear the radio... and another will hand his feet out of the window because his legs are cramped. (When did they grow so tall?)

There will still be the perennial recording of "When we gonna eat?" (muted because their mouths are full of food). And you'll ask, "Anyone for a hamburger? A salad? A piggy wiggly hot dog?" (Did it always cost $20 to buy them lunch?)

Boredom hangs like a thick fog over the entire back seat. "Hey, kids," you say, "Look at the colors in that mountain."

"Gross."

"Would you believe that sunset? It's like a painting."

"Gross."

"Hey, group, Daddy and I are going to chip in and buy you all a new word when we stop."

"Gross."

(When did the excitement of a mountain give way to Mad magazine?)

At the beach, you begin to suspect things are changing when you and Daddy are the only two splashing around in the water. One child is in a phone booth making plans to split. Another has found a girl preciated your boost for Recovery, Inc. For 15 years I suffered from nerves. I went to doctor after doctor, took thousands of tranquilizers, and then I read about Recovery, Inc. in an article by Dr. Walter Alvarez. I learned that a group was holding meetings four blocks from my home.

The people there weren't interested in anybody's past — only the future. They taught me not to be afraid of my feelings, how to react to nervous people who blow up, how to find the courage to go back to shopping, driving and living. You learn you won't die if your heart beats fast or if you can't catch your breath, or if you get waves of nausea and spells of weakness.

All it cost me was 25 cents for the coffee and cake after the meeting. Some bargain for a whole new life, after 15 years in hell. Tell it again, Ann.

M.M.M.

Dear M.M.M.: I will. Write to the national headquarters and find out where the meetings are being held in your town. The address is: Recovery, Inc., 116 S. Michigan Avenue, Chicago, Illinois 60603.

Dear Ann Landers: This is

"I am so doing something... I'm waiting for the phone to ring!"

my husband's first year with a firm that will soon have their annual barbecue. Wives and husbands are not invited. It's strictly for employees.

We both work and have precious little time together. I resent this policy and feel that companies should promote togetherness at home instead of making trouble between husbands and wives. My husband says he is going, regardless — and we've argued about it. I told him if he goes it will be the straw that broke the camel's back. Comment, please.

Lana

Dear L.: That camel didn't have a very strong back, Lana. Although I agree that company parties that exclude mates are bummers, if that's the way his company does it, be a good sport. A wife who would give her husband an ultimatum over such a trivial matter is grossly immature.

Dear Ann Landers: I'll make it short and sweet. My husband (age 42), father of four children (oldest 15, youngest 6), has been cheating on me for the last ten years. I have caught him red-handed, flat-footed — every which way. He always says he is sorry, takes an oath on his mother's life,

Unit 20 to join organization

NAZARETH — After a year of "studying" the coaxings of the Pennsylvania School Boards Assn. to join that group, Unit 20 officials finally broke down Wednesday night.

Unit 20 was the only special education group which didn't belong to the association this year.

Directors from Monroe, Pike and Northampton counties repeatedly rejected PSBA's offer to join this year, since all were members of the association through their home school boards.

Woodrow Lindenmeyer joked the unit was "fast getting a reputation" as a non-conformist outfit, pointing out it was the only unit in the state to have its budget rejected last year by directors.

Geraldine Felver, however, said a changing educational climate necessitated membership in the PSBA.

Besides receiving consultant services, membership, also means up to five newsletters a week and other bi-weekly reading material. Cost is $250 annually.

The motion passed 6-1, with James Price, Pocono Mountain, casting the dissenting vote.

The bidding:
South 1 NT
West Pass
North 2 ♠

Opening lead — ten of clubs.
How much luck is there in duplicate bridge? Certainly not much in the long run, for luck tends to even out as time goes on, but in the short haul it is possible to be extremely lucky — even though the same hands are played at each table.

Consider this deal from a team of four match. At the first table, South — theoretically playing weak notrumps with a range of 12 to 14 points — decided to open with a notrump.

This proved to be a very lucky shot when North, using a specialized form of the Slayman convention, responded two diamonds, asking South to bid a four-card major suit if he had one. South duly obliged with two spades and North took the bull by the horns by raising partner to six.

This contract proved to be absolutely unbeatable. West led a club and declarer went up with the ace, cashed the K-A of trumps, ran five diamonds — discarding a heart and a club from dummy — and so lost only a club trick to bring home the slam.

It would not have helped West to lead the ace of hearts instead of a club. In that case, with perfectly normal play, declarer would likewise have made the slam.

At the second table, the bidding went as follows:

South 1 NT
West Pass
North 2 ♠
East Pass

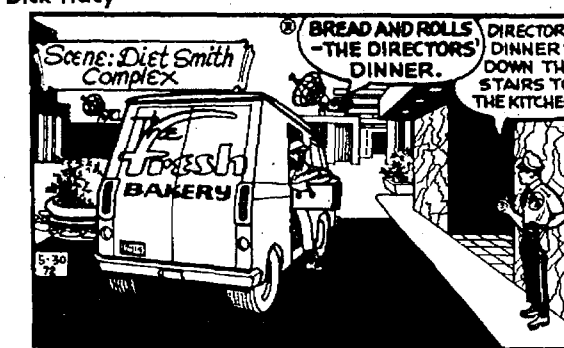

Here North became declarer at six spades and East led a heart. As a result, the slam went down the drain, for North had to lose a heart and a club regardless of how he played the hand. The rub of the green, you might say, but that's what sometimes happens in duplicate bridge.

New York's Voice of Broadway

NEW YORK — Margaret Sanger was just kayaked by Muhammad Ali. He's announcing he plans 15 children ... No secrets, not even retroactively among the glitter generation: Kitty Hawks, daughter of movie director Howard, tells interviewers she "no longer lives with Bill Friedkin." he's "the Godfather" director ... Why is Kitty being interviewed? Because she's pretty, and Howard's daughter ... Cary Grant really gets around for his Faberge firm. Took his boss jet to Paris just to open a new perfume, Fleur du Monde. Countess Jacqueline de Rochambau was Cary's hostess, inasmuch as there's no Mrs. Grant, only formerly, and she isn't the elegant hostess type.

Leslie Charteris (author of "The Saint" etc.) is okay after a scary car crash in England. His chauffeur yanked him from the wreck seconds before it exploded ... Old jockeys don't just fade away: ex-jockey John Tammaro now weighs in at 225 at Monmouth, N.J., track where he's imported his big stable ... Al Martino swore to a heckling Persian Room crowd he'd never come near N.Y. again, but he will: opens at nearby Westbury, L.I., Music Fair ... The Yankees shakeup could come before this hits print.

Eire at 58. Dan Parker, finest sports columnist of his considerable day, made Jack famous with the funniest columns of that nutty era. Which is why Doyle's manager, the late Jimmy Johnston, made more money with him than some champions ... Israel's getting its helping of violent crimes, and the local law can't figure how heisters are grabbing Israel's famous machine gun, the Uzzi, despite tough anti-gun laws. Where there's a gun there's a gunsel.

English now is compulsory in Dutch schools. Maybe we ought to try it here ... President Nixon sent Ruby Keeler a "Presidential Golf Ball." June 25-July 1 is Women Golfer's Week, and Ruby keeps her swing in shape while here with a much-used guest membership at the Apawamis Club in Rye, N.Y. ... The very tangible worries of success: Xerox is so wildly popular a copying machine, the firm is afraid it'll become a generic and lose its name as aspirin once did.

Vic Damone's going through bankruptcy. His affairs now are in the hands of his intended Texas oilman father-in-law, "Available" Jones, whose Becky Vic hopes to wed shortly. Let's see now, didn't Vic once have an intended in Buffalo? Whose dad was very mad when Vic faded away. Very tough fellow, too.

Ari Onassis' son, Alexandre, is handsomer these days, especially about the nose ... Paramount press agents couldn't believe it. Paula Prentiss arrived for an interview about "Last of the Red Hot Lovers" 15 minutes early. A first! ... The Vegas Riviera tore down a wall to make 150 more seats for the Engelbert Humperdinck engagement. Paid for it in three sellout Hamperdinck performances ... GOP insiders say George Wallace definitely will back Nixon. And there'll be a payoff. Not the veepship.

Time to come and a time to go: "Applause" leaves Bdw. in its third year despite the lovely presence of Arlene Dahl. Who's rich enough not to be tortured about her brief run ... The Bdw. stage season closed with a whimper: "Heaven," the sad Hawaiian-type musical strangled after one performance ... Now they're offering Cook's Tours of China ... Didja know the Italian railroads have their pasta & wine etc. catered by that same Yankee firm—Cook's?

Who waits on you at the Ex-otique underwear shop? No less a title than Contessa Isabella-Patrizia Tiziana-Laurie. Whose late pop was an English earl ... More Howard Hughes case irony: the new McGraw-Hill Building nearing completion on 6th Ave. at 49th St. contains a bank Clifford Irving really should use for his deposits of Howard's cash: It's the Irving Trust.

Opening lead — five of clubs.

Guessing a two-way finesse for a queen is a fairly common challenge, but to get by this challenge and then also guess a nine finesse in the same suit is a rare occurrence indeed.

Look at this sensational hand played by Bobby Wolff of the Dallas Aces in the 1971 world championship match between the United States and France.

East won the low club lead with the ace and returned a spade, taken by West with the ace. West thereupon cashed the king of clubs, bringing the defense to three tricks, and exited with a spade.

The ball was now in Wolff's lap, his one and only problem being to avoid a trump loser. Ordinarily, with this heart combination, declarer's best method of play by far would be to cash the king and lead the ten, planning to finesse.

But Wolff, after studying the situation carefully, came to the conclusion that these were not ordinary circumstances. It seemed to him that West was more likely to have the queen than East, judging from his hurry to cash the king of clubs before returning a spade.

Backing his judgment to the hilt, Wolff won the spade with the queen and led the jack of trumps. West covered with the queen, expecting his nine to take the setting trick later on, but he was doomed to disappointment.

Wolff won in dummy with the king, returned to his hand with a diamond, led the eight of hearts, and successfully finessed when West followed low.

So Wolff made four hearts by brilliantly abandoning the mathematical percentages and substituting his own fine judgment in their place. Which is exactly how championships are won!

Break-up

SUMMER PLAIN: (Q.) My girl friend Sue's cousin told me Sue is planning to break up with me because there is another boy she wants to go out with this summer.

How can I get her not to? I want to keep going with her.

Dark Future in Indiana

(A.) Suggest to Sue that this summer you two keep going together but also date others.

This will give her an opportunity to look around at other boys, including the specific one she is interested in. It will also give you an opportunity to check out other girls.

In finding out how much you like others, Sue and you will learn more about how much you like each other.

BOY TALK: (Q.) I have this girl friend and she likes this boy a whole lot. Now when our group is together, all we hear about is him. She won't talk about anything else and she won't give anybody else any time to talk.

We are SICK of hearing about him. Please help.

Full Up to Here in Ohio

(A.) Some people talk endlessly about anything. Some people talk endlessly about one thing.

Either type is tough on everyone around. There are two ways of handling such a person. One is to avoid the person. The other is to tell the person you've had all you can stand.

If you think your friend is worth the trouble, ask her kindly but clearly to stop talking about her boy friend.

A START: (Q.) I met this girl at this play we are in. We talked and really hit it off well. I said, "My back hurts," and she started to massage my back. Practice was over, so I offered to walk her home. She said I could, so I did.

She asked me in. We talked some more. I asked her if she was going to the teen club that night and she said she couldn't. I called her on the phone after I got home and she asked me if I could come over to her house again, but I didn't.

The next day at school she was friendly, but she said we were only good friends. What shall I do?

Age 15 in Pennsylvania

(A.) Continue to be good friends. Out of such experiences as yours teen-agers often get to be more than just good friends. If she remains friendly for a few phone calls and walks home, and you still like her, ask her for a date.

If she says yes, you will know that she is interested in becoming more than just a good friend.

Cost of federal aid runs high for Monroe taxpayers

Special to the Record
STROUDSBURG — According to a recent study, taxpayers in Monroe County are paying a high price for the benefits their area receives in the form of federal aid.

The figures show that for every dollar in grants that comes to them from Washington — for welfare, education, health, housing, highways, urban renewal and other purposes — the cost to them is $1.22.

That is the estimate of the amount they have been contributing, via their income taxes and excise taxes, for allocation to the aid programs. It is exclusive of what had to be provided locally in the form of matching funds.

The study was made by the Tax Foundation, a non-profit research organization that keeps tab on federal spending. It represents a state by state breakdown of Treasury Department figures covering the past fiscal year.

The findings are that, in 21 of the states, more money was collected in taxes that were earmarked for the aid.

Of the taxes collected in the State of Pennsylvania as a whole, $1,702,000,000 went into the aid program and $1,391,000,000 came back in grants.

Monroe County's contribution amounted to approximately $6,461,000 of the total and its share of the grants, to nearly $5,296,000.

As for the unequal distribution of grants-in-aid, it is explained that there is no attempt to return dollar for dollar. The purpose is to provide aid in accordance with need.

The report shows that a total of $29 billion in such aid was distributed among the 50 states during the past year. This compares with $23.5 billion in 1970.

Much more than this is available to states and localities, it is noted. Various funds that are obtainable go begging because no application is made for them.

The reason is, according to Senator William V. Roth of Delaware, who made a study

Write to know

The people in The Pocono Record circulation area have a "Write to Know" — and The Record will try to provide the answers in the "Write to Know" column. The column, designed to answer any questions or solve any problems (consumer, government or anything else) will appear every Monday on the first page of the second section. Send all questions to "Write to Know," The Pocono Record, 511 Lenox St., Stroudsburg, Pa. 18360. Questions should be in writing, and signed. No telephone calls, please.

Q. — Are there any laws governing the uniformity of trading stamps. I am wondering if they may be cashed in for money instead of the gifts catalogued.

S.C.D., Snyder'sville

A. — Coincidentally, the state legislature passed the Trading Stamp Sales Practices Act this year which grants purchasers the option of redeeming trading stamps for either cash or premiums. It also requires that all trading stamp companies register with the state Bureau of Consumer Protection and be bonded to protect consumers.

Q. — I would like to know if Social Security and pension monies are classified as earned income and if they are taxable in Pennsylvania.

J.H.W., Tobyhanna

A. — The state income tax information office in Harrisburg said your Social Security and pension benefits are considered as earned incomes. They also pointed out a recent Supreme Court ruling labeled the taxing of social security and pension benefits as unconstitutional. Therefore, the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania may not levy taxes upon those benefits.

Q. — I am interested in purchasing a car seat for my son but several friends have warned me many are considered hazardous. Can you advise me what to look for in selecting one?

A.R.T. Sciota

A. — A booklet entitled "What to Buy in Child Restraint Systems" is available from the Superintendent of Documents, Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. for 20 cents. It advises use of a car seat only for children between the ages of nine months and four years and outlines various other means of protection for children of different ages.

Q. — I recently purchased some "fresh" vegetables at the market that looked fine at the time but, when I opened the cellophane package at home, they were wilted beyond use. How could this have happened so quickly? (By the way, the store did refund my money.)

A. — Providing you didn't permit the vegetables to remain under warm temperatures between the time they were purchased and the time you arrived at home, the packaging may have been deceiving. Colored plastic wrappers on fruits and vegetables often make them appear fresher than they really are. Also, an overly tight packaging or colored lights above the counter may have been responsible. Check these factors next time.

Q. — Could you please describe the various labels on meat indicating their quality. There are so many, I find them confusing.

B.A.M. Brodheadsville

A. — "USDA Prime" indicates the best and most expensive; "USDA Choice," very high quality; "USDA Good," not as juicy or flavorful but tender and without much fat; "USDA Standard," little fat and mild flavor but lacks juiciness; "USDA Comel," lack of tenderness and needs long, slow cooking for full flavor. All labels are regulated by the federal Department of Agriculture.

Area residents smoking more

(Special to the Record)
STROUDSBURG — How much smoking have residents of Monroe County been doing since cigarette commercials were ruled off the air, a little more than a year ago?

Have they cut back as a result? Are they smoking more or less today than people in other parts of the country?

Judging from the latest regional figures, although many people are smoking less than they did before or have given up the habit completely, others have started smoking for the first time.

The overall picture appears to be, according to tobacco distributors, that the decrease is chiefly among older people and among those who have never been heavy users.

On the other hand, for every one of them who quits, there are two or three young persons who are just beginning to smoke.

The net result of these ups and downs, reports the Department of Agriculture, is that there has been an increase of nearly three per cent in the past year in the number of cigarettes smoked by Americans.

In Monroe County, on the basis of a breakdown of statewide figures released by the Tobacco Tax Council, an estimated 4,815,000 packs of cigarettes were sold in the past fiscal year.

It was equivalent to 163 packs for every local resident over the age of 18.

In some sections of the country the rate of consumption was much greater than this and, in other sections, smaller. Nationally, the average rate among persons over 18 was 202 packs. In the Middle Atlantic States it was 181.

It is pointed out that these figures are based upon the number of packs on which taxes were paid. They do not take into account the large quantity of cigarettes that were bootlegged to avoid taxes.

Because the tax on a pack of cigarettes has been rising and now averages 19 cents in the United States, bootlegging has become more of a problem and smoking a more expensive luxury.

In Monroe County, an estimated $2,152,000 was spent last year by local residents for cigarettes. It was at the rate of $73 per smoker.

Memorial Day is for remembering...

...as well as some high stepping formations and fun.

Rep. McDade urges prayer for peace

STROUDSBURG — While breezes tugged at the flag, Rep. Joseph M. McDade urged a courthouse square assemblage of several hundred to "pray for peace" in morning Memorial Day services.

McDade's remarks culminated over an hour-long parade with more than 1,000 participants through the boroughs.

"It is the season of life," said the 10th congressional district representative under perfect blue skies, "and in this season, we have gathered together briefly and solemnly to remember the dead.

"And it is appropriate that we do so, because we are remembering and honoring those who have died; that we might have life, that we might breathe the air of freedom in a country which they have preserved.

"We go to the graves of those who have died and we lay flowers to signify our love...We remember what price they paid to give us this life."

He turned to the Strategic Air Command's motto: "Peace Is Our Profession." The slogan, McDade stated, "could be written on the grave of every citizen who died for this nation and whom we remember today — that peace was his profession."

"If for this next year, we can lend our prayers and our hearts and our minds and our hands to the task of peace, perhaps we can say on Memorial Day of 1973, when we gather here once more, that nowhere in the world is an American citizen in danger because of a foreign war.

"If on that day," he concluded,

"we can say that America is truly at peace with herself and all the nations of the world, then we will have really remembered these dead.

"We will have honored these dead. We will have given to them the only glory which they ever really sought."

With temperatures hitting the low 70s, several uniformed high school bandmen found heat fatigue more of a problem than did spectators.

Observers said the crowds appeared to number less this year, although the usual percentage of tykes were perched on shoulders as divisions made the trek between East Stroudsburg High School and the courthouse.

A squadron of Blue Angels from the Marine Air Reserve in Willow Grove shot trails of smoke as United Veterans Organization officials placed wreaths at the American Legion Monument.

"It is the honor they would want above all others," McDade said at one point. "It is the honor of peace."

State property tax claims due

HARRISBURG — Today is the last day for the filing of claims under the state's Property Tax Assistance program, according to a reminder issued by Secretary of Revenue Robert P. Kane.

The original deadline had been April 29 which was extended by Kane for the maximum allowable period of 30 days.

"While the filing date in April had been extended to Monday, May 29, the fact that Memorial Day will be observed on Monday allows the filing of claims posted up to and including Tuesday, May 30," Kane explained.

The Senior Citizens Property Tax Assistance program, which will draw directly on profits from the state lottery beginning the new fiscal year, provides property tax relief up to a maximum amount of $200 per year for eligible senior citizens over 65, and for widows over 50 years of age, and disabled persons of any age as well.

Kane said, "In addition to the thirty-day extension which we granted in April, we opened and staffed 108 information field offices throughout the state to reach all those who are eligible for this assistance. We note with appreciation that we were able to maintain those 108 information centers through valued assistance of public-spirited community groups, local government officials, many legislators and senior citizens groups.

"Now with the filing deadline upon us, it is my sincere hope that all those eligible for this property tax assistance will have filed their applications by Tuesday midnight.

"Assistance of this kind is the reason the state legislature approved the establishment of a lottery and it would be unfortunate indeed if this state-established privilege is not utilized to the fullest degree possible."

Kane pointed out that under the provisions of the state's fiscal code, any extension granted by the Secretary of Revenue is limited to 30 days.

"We have given the limit the law provides and no further extension can be granted," Kane concluded.

PennDOT calls for 209 exam

STROUDSBURG — A Pennsylvania Department of Transportation district engineer has called for the Monroe County Commissioners, Middle Smithfield Township Supervisors and members of the East Stroudsburg School District board to jointly look at a potential accident hazard on Route 209 near Bushkill.

In a letter to the county commissioners, district engineer A. Victor Cesare said PennDOT is currently studying the area to find a way to "alleviate the hazardous conditions on this section of highway."

The area being scrutinized has a posted 40-mile per hour speed limit and has a school bus stop situated at the north end of a blind curve.

Cesare pointed out it "may also be advisable to request more stringent enforcement by local police to insure compliance with the speed limit." That area is under the jurisdiction of the Pennsylvania State Police from the Stroudsburg Barracks.

The PennDOT engineer's letter to the commissioners was the result of a resolution drawn up by the East Stroudsburg School District and endorsed by the commissioners urging the highway department to implement corrective measures to eliminate the hazards near the school bus stops.

To this request Cesare replied, "Please be assured of our sincere effort in arriving at a conclusive solution to the hazardous conditions in this area."

The on-site examination of the hazardous areas of Rte. 209 has been scheduled to take place June 6.

Illegitimate births rise in county

Record Harrisburg Bureau
HARRISBURG — The State Department of Health said recently following an in-depth study that seven per cent of the births in Monroe County during 1970 have been classified as illegitimate births.

Significantly perhaps, this represents an upswing from the preceding year's six per cent illegitimacy rate for the county.

Broken down numerically, the year 1970 recorded 731 births in Monroe County, of which 51 were classified as illegitimate. In the preceding year births in the county totaled 714, with 43 in the illegitimate category.

How does Monroe County compare with other counties in the state?

In 1970 the illegitimate birth rate for the state as a whole stood at 9.8 per cent (7.0 per cent for Monroe County), while in 1969 the statewide average was 9.2 per cent (6.0 for Monroe County).

Mountainhome commuter wins sum, loses some

By ANDREA B. STERN

Pocono Record Reporter
MOUNTAINHOME — Bob Erwin, a part-time Mountainhome resident, is, in his own words, a "big plunger," and that quality recently netted him $1,515 on a national TV game show.

Erwin, whose family now resides in Mountainhome and who commutes from a New York apartment on weekends, appeared on two NBC tapings of The Who, What and Where Game which will be aired over the network on June 29 and 30.

"I was a big plunger. I bet everything I had but I didn't do it the last time. I didn't bid enough then," Erwin said of his appearances on the show where contestants bid the sums they have earned against their ability to answer the questions correctly.

Terming the questions "pretty straightforward," he said, "The problem is to listen carefully and then analyze the question. There is nothing that trips the person up except his own faults."

Citing an example of "his own fault," Erwin said one question concerned the location of the Grand Coulee Dam.

"In my mind I saw the Boulder Dam and the Hoover Dam and since it was a where question, I began thinking of Arizona. It wasn't a tricky question, but your mind plays tricks on you in the process."

Can guess

"Sometimes you can guess," he noted. "Twice I guessed correctly and one was just off the top of my head."

Erwin found his appearances "very exciting and extremely interesting and said the show's personnel are "really very decent and nice people."

"One thing about it is that the show is perfectly honest," he stressed. "There's no coaching or favoritism. It's a perfectly honest and straight operation."

'Design' speakers

STROUDSBURG — The following speakers will be heard on Radio Station WVPO's "Design for Living" program during the week of May 29:

Tuesday — Rev. L.W. Drury, The Wesleyan Church, Stroudsburg.

Wednesday — Rev. Clyde Sholtzberger, Tobyhanna United Methodist Church.

Thursday — Rev. David Burkhardt, Arlington-Wesley United Methodist Church, Stroudsburg.

Friday — Bob Bullock, "The Gospel D.J." of WVPO.

A social studies teacher at the Manhattan Vocational-Technical High School in New York, Erwin said it was impossible to study for the show in advance.

"You really can't study. What I did was study procedure. I had my wife analyze all of the techniques and procedure so I would be familiar with the program."

"She coached me on procedure but there wasn't anything you could do on the subjects because they are taken from random."

His family moved to Mountainhome a year ago and they plan to build a house near Bushkill in the near future. His decision to establish a full-time residence here will depend on the commuting time between Bushkill and New York after Interstate 80 is completed.

While he currently finds it uneconomical to give up his New York apartment, Erwin nonetheless maintains, "I think the Poconos are the greatest place in the world."

Authority to meet

STROUDSBURG — The Monroe County Area Vocational-Technical School Authority will meet at 7:30 p.m. Thursday in the offices of Samuel Newman, 712 Monroe St., Stroudsburg.

Jaycees assist travelers

SCOTRUN — The Pocono Mountains Jaycees threw another strike in the ballgame of traffic safety Monday as they served free coffee to eastbound I-80 motorists at the rate of 200 cups per hour.

Joe Small Jr., said the Jaycees opened their coffee stop at the Scotrun rest area at approximately 2 p.m. Monday and began to run low on coffee almost immediately.

Small said they projected that about 800 to 1,000 cups of java would be served to the motorists, based on the response from their Labor Day campaign but that figure was being outdistanced by 2 to 1 after the first three hours of operation.

In an effort to stay ahead of the coffee demand the Jaycees began pre-heating the water on a charcoal stove at the rest area while Memorial Day motorists strolled around relaxing and waiting for the fresh brew to stop perking.

"At this rate," said Small, "we should serve between 1,600 and 2,000 cups of coffee."

By 4:30 p.m. they ran out of coffee and had to get more.

The Jaycees have been serving coffee to holiday travelers for several years and it has become a national program. Approximately four other coffee stops were set up along I-80 by Jaycee groups between the Delaware River and the Ohio state line.

Utility modernizing power line

STROUDSBURG — Pennsylvania Power & Light Co. is modernizing its 230,000-volt transmission line between Bushkill and Hawley under a $145,000 construction project scheduled for completion in the near future.

James P. Walton, PP&L's Pocono manager, said the project is designed to increase the power-carrying capability of the line and to provide it with adequate protection against lightning.

The work involves the removal of wooden extensions from atop the towers and the transfer of overhead ground wires to newly installed steel extensions. Miscellaneous hardware also is being replaced to increase the line's capability.

Donohue just delight to mother

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — Mark Donohue, the sandy-haired, new Indianapolis 500 driving champ, is everything his mother says he is.

"You watch," she said, as her 35-year-old son, still sitting behind the wheel of his low-slung British-built McLaren, was escorted into "victory lane" here Saturday following his record-breaking 163.465 mph win. "He won't take any credit himself. He'll just say the mechanics did it."

Mrs. Hazel "Zilly" Donohue of Summit, N.J., certainly knows her own son.

Hustled over to the platform near the starting line moments after peeling off his helmet, Mark Donohue said pretty much what his mother said he would.

"I couldn't be happier," declared the bland gentlemanly mechanical engineer from Newtown Square. "This is the greatest moment I've ever had. All the guys who worked on the car were responsible."

Donohue, the father of two small boys, Michael, seven, and David, five, was competing in his fourth Indianapolis 500 and the one he remembers best was his third, last year, even though he finished second in the 1970 Indy classic.

Last year he didn't finish at all. He was running along smoothly in first place when he developed gear box trouble that forced him out and Al Unser came on to win. The mishap occurred in the 66th lap.

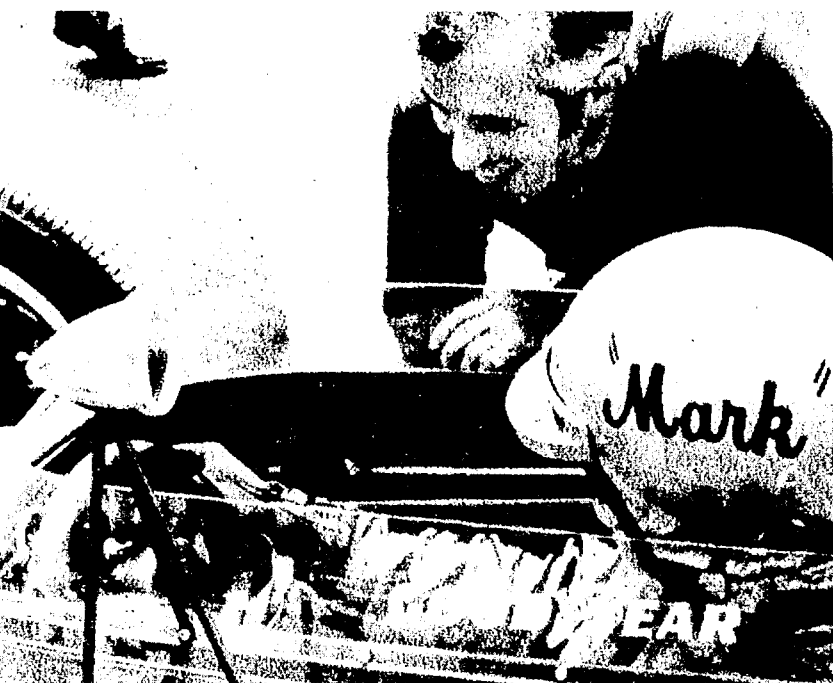

"We had bad luck last year," Donohue remembered Saturday as the 300,000 here cheered him after his victory. "Coming down the track just now I looked back at where we were forced out last year and it brought back some sad memories."

This time Donohue's teammate, Gary Bettenhausen, had all the bad luck. He was leading in his McLaren and it looked as if he had the race locked up when he developed a sick engine.

"I wasn't partial during the race," said the winner's mother, an outgoing, pleasant little lady in a cool-looking white dress who was sublimely happy at the end.

"I was rooting for the team. Each time Gary went by, I'd holler, 'Go, Gary, go, we gotta win this.' Each time Mark went by, I yelled, 'Go, Mark, go!'"

Donohue, a graduate of Brown University, became interested in auto racing during his teens and lived at home with his parents in Summit, N.J., as an amateur driver to save money.

Grant's crew took 'gas,' driver dropped to 12th

Combined wire services
INDIANAPOLIS — Although it had the most effect, a protest which cost Jerry Grant second place in Saturday's Indianapolis 500 was one of three after the race.

Mark Donohue was earlier confirmed winner of the race despite some of the biggest ruckus, but an apparent foulup in the pits cost Grant second place honors.

While a protest challenging Donohue as the winner was denied Sunday, a second protest made Al Unser the runner-up instead of Grant, who was dropped to 12th spot.

That gave Unser, a three-year finish of two firsts and a second in the race. Behind Unser the others through 11th place moved up one spot.

But Grant, Seattle, Wash., lost his second position in the final amended finish after race stewards allowed a protest by George Bignotti, chief mechanic to Bobby Unser, Joe Leonard and Mario Andretti.

Bignotti contended that Grant, on his fifth and final pit stop only 13 laps from the end, took on fuel illegally from teammate Bobby

Jerry Grant

Unser's pit. Earlier, United States Auto Club officials denied charges of illegal refueling by Grant's crew.

Chief Steward Harlan Fenger said evidence shown in films he and other officials viewed earlier Sunday and from reports of witnesses, that Grant's pit crew indeed did refuel his car illegally and as a result he was not credited with any laps after the 187th.

Fenger said the designer-builder Dan Gurney had three days in which to appeal, but added, "Dan doesn't deny (fuel) lines were hooked up" from Unser's pit.

"Grant's car was fully in Bobby Unser's pit," Fenger said. "It would have been all right had it been pushed back a few feet into Grant's pit."

There was no indication whether an appeal would be lodged, but Gurney's protest of Donohue's first place finish was disallowed. In fact, Gurney said he accepted Donohue as the winner following a reclick of timing and scoring data.

Also disallowed was a third protest by Dick Sommers, co-owner of Jim Hurtubise's car. Sommers said the North Tonawanda, N.Y., driver should have finished 18th instead of 23rd and should have been credited with 171 laps instead of 91.

Fenger ruled Hurtubise was automatically disqualified when his car stalled and went off the race course. It was later restarted and continued.

Combined wire services

INDIANAPOLIS — When Mark Donohue takes the green flag July 2 for the second annual Schaefer 500 at Pocono International Raceway, he will try to become the first driver in 32 years to win three out of the last four 500-mile races he has started.

But the Newtown Square mechanical engineer admitted "We were the lucky ones" Saturday after winning the Indianapolis 500.

Donohue, who won the inaugural Schaefer 500, finished 18th in last year's California 500 at Ontario. At Pocono he will try to become the first man since Wilbur Shaw to win three of the last four 500 races. Shaw won Indianapolis in 1937, finished second the next year and came back to win the following two races.

Donohue, who snapped the race record of 157.735 miles per hour set last year by Al Unser, finished the race with an average speed of 163.465 MPH.

He took the lead with only 13 laps left in the race when leader Jerry Grant picked up a chunk of metal with the tire of his car.

At the end, Donohue's McLaren was about 45 seconds ahead of dark-horse Grant, who seemed on the way to a surprise win when the three-inch piece of gear ruined his bid.

Grant was forced into the pits for a quick change of his right front tire on the 187th lap—only 11 laps after he had made what was supposed to have been his fourth and final stop.

But the stop cost Grant more than the win. It shoved him back to 12th place.

George Bignotti, chief mechanic for Al Unser, Joe Leonard and Mario Andretti, protested that Grant had illegally taken on fuel during the stop.

Dan Gurney, owner of Grant's Mystery Eagle, acknowledged the illegal fueling, but questioned the severity of the penalty. It was the first protest, United States Auto Club officials said, since 1946.

As a result Al Unser, the 1971 winner, was moved up to second place and defending national champion Joe Leonard went into third.

"The was some metal on the track and my tire picked up a chunk of it," Grant said after the race. "And since we were going pretty fast out there, I figured we had better do something about it."

"If Grant hadn't had that trouble, the outcome would very likely have been different," Donohue admitted. "But we were the lucky ones today."

Al Unser, who was foiled in his attempt to become the first driver to win Indy three straight times, actually drove a brilliant race, coming out of the 19th starting position.

"It's tough to play catchup," he said. "And that's what I had to do all through the race. He was the fourth back to back winner to fail in an effort for a third, following Mauri Rose and Shaw, who also lost in their third victory attempts, and the Bill Vukovich Sr., who was killed while leading in his bid."

There were no serious accidents in the 56th running of the race, although Jim Malloy was killed and Art Pollard suffered a broken leg in accidents during practice.

The only accident during the race came in the 57th lap when Mike Mosley, Clairmont, Ind., who had taken the lead on the previous lap, lost a wheel coming into the

"One day he said to me, 'Mother' — he always calls me that or Zilly — he said, 'Mother, you know when I get out of college I'm going to race!' I said only one word: 'Okay.' I must say I heard the scissors cutting the apron strings. He was 21 when he graduated college and he did what he said. He usually does. Before this race, he told me he just had to win here at Indianapolis. Why? That's obvious. It's the greatest race there is."

Donohue won the Schaefer 500 at Pocono International Raceway last year.

When he finished here this year you'd have thought he had just come back from a Saturday afternoon drive in the country. No great elation, no excitement, no great big grin.

He drank the traditional milk from a bottle, only two or three gulps, and accepted a kiss from the 500 festival queen, another tradition.

His mother then was helped up the platform and the photographers urged Mark Donohue to kiss her for a picture. He did.

Mama was in seventh heaven.

"He's the greatest race driver in the world," she beamed.

homestretch and bounced twice off the outside wall.

Mosley's car burst into flames and the 25-year-old native Oklahoman was burning as he tumbled off. He was pulled away from the wreck by rescue workers and taken to Methodist Hospital, where his injuries were described as second and third degree burns of both feet and ankles and minor burns of the face. His condition was described as "satisfactory."

The only other injury during the race was to Dennis Ozan, a member of Wally Dallenbach's crew, who suffered burns while putting out one of the two fires that Dallenbach's car had in the pits.

Despite the fires, Dallenbach's charred Lola stayed in the race.

It was a day of frustration, too, for Bobby Unser, the 1968 champion who had electrified the prerace qualifying when he set a record of 195.940 MPH — 17 miles per hour faster than the mark set last year by Peter Revson.

Unser went to the front at the beginning of the race and for 30 laps he was in front with a record speed to that point of almost 180 MPH.

Then his Gurney Eagle was in the pits. For nine minutes his crew labored to correct ignition trouble and finally they gave up.

Long ends fourth in NCAA javelin

ASHLAND, Ohio — Javelin thrower Ed Long became East Stroudsburg State College's second place winner in the NCAA College Division Track and Field Championships Saturday when he took fourth in his specialty.

Long tossed the javelin 227-6, his season's best. ESSC's Len Jenkins had finished third in the triple jump Friday with a school record 49-2 1/4.

The Warriors placed highest among the seven Pennsylvania Conference entered with ten points. This gave them a tie for 18th place of the 115 colleges which sent 611 athletes to the meet.

Long placed ahead of Indiana's John Elliott, who took fifth with a toss of 225-6. Elliott had edged Long by three inches in the Pennsylvania Conference championships.

The javelin was won by Jim Feeney of Fullerton, Calif. State with a meet record loss of 243-4. The old record was 239-3 set by Darol Wintele of Weber State in 1968.

OUR LONG-WEARING VOLVOS COME IN ELEVEN MACHINE-WASHABLE, FADE-RESISTANT COLORS.

All our Volvos wear six coats. Which is why a Volvo of any color is ideally suited to take a lot of wash and wear.

The three enamel color coats are applied wet-on-wet-on-wet. Then the body is baked in an oven. The result is a thick, hard finish that protects against corrosion and resists the bleaching effects of the summer sun.

In Sweden, where the summer sun can shine 24 hours a day, Volvo is the #1 best seller both new and used.

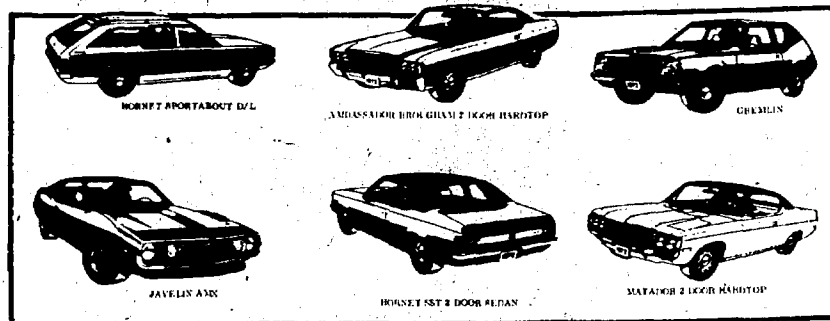

So in considering performance, look past m.p.h. to the finish. And see us for a colorfast Volvo.
